PowerPoint - Page Setup Variations

Did you know that you are not forced to have your slides landscaped? You can actually change the orientation of your slides and change the page size as well.

There are many reasons why you might want to change the size or orientation of your slide set – your presentation information needs a longer page or you are creating a document that requires a different size than the default 7.5” x 10”. Many scientific posters (as big as 4’ x 6’) are created in PowerPoint.

To change the slide orientation (this affects the whole slide set) – in 2003 go to File and Page Setup and in 2007 and above choose Design from the menu ribbon, Page Setup, and click Slide Orientation.

To change the slide size (this affects the whole slide set) in 2003 got to File and Page Setup and in 2007 and above choose Design from the menu ribbon, Page Setup and click Page Setup. From here you can adjust the size or orientation of slides and notes/handouts.

Next time you have to begin a slide set – try using a different size or setting the slides to portrait. You can always change it back to the default. If you have a future PowerPoint or other MS Office project that you need help with contact us at info@aapk.com

B2Bs Use of Content Marketing

Want to know what other B2B marketers are doing about Social Media and Content Marketing? A recent study has been released on The State of B2B Content Marketing in North America. It's very interesting information that shows how B2B marketers are using content marketing techniques and the challenges they are dealing with.

You can see results including what are the top social media sites where they post content (Guess who's in the #1 position – you may be surprised), what their content challenges are and what how much are others budgeting for content marketing. See the full article by Marketo here.
